*CORDs - Coordination of Rare Diseases" (CoRDS) at Sanford designed and maintains a patient registry for rare diseases. Based at Sanford Research in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, a not-for-profit research institution, CoRDS is a centralized international patient registry for all rare diseases. The goal of the CoRDS registry is to connect as many patients and researchers as possible to help advance treatments and cures for rare diseases. The CoRDS registry is free for Stickler syndrome patients to enroll and for researchers to access. Many of us registered at the Denver SIP conference last year.
